This is a bear hug of a CD. Ambitious, fun-filled, and stocked with loads of entertaining musical chops, Broadway Calls knocks on the big wooden door of pop-punk and staggers through with a drunken stupor spewed forth. This re-release of their self-titled debut by Adeline Records reminds us that pop-punk is here to stay and that it can survive all of the mall kids and mainstream genies. Revel in their nutty nature and amazing melodies with sweet harmonies that recall Dillinger Four and Saves the Day at times.

BAND SPOTLIGHT

Chiodos

Perhaps no one can explain the sheer ferocity and timid quietness it is better than when vocalist Craig Owens says "we don't want to let the kids down" when discussing the group's intense vocals live at shows. Well they never let a single kid down with their vicious assault on the ears and grip on the jugular...
