Ex-Pantera singer Phil Anselmo now has a full-time job in this former side project, and it's about time. His backwoods-devil growling in "Never Try" and "Beneath the Tides" attest to his victories over hard drugs and the viciously public breakup of Pantera. But Anselmo's avenging Southern soul comes fortified with double-guitar dynamite – the harmony riffing and hellhounds' debate of Kirk Windstein and Corrosion of Conformity's Pepper Keenan – that sounds like it crept out of a Louisiana swamp.
