Nico & Vinz ascend 2-1 on Mainstream Top 40 with their debut hit, "Am I Wrong." The Norwegian duo becomes the ninth pair to top the tally, dating to the chart's October 1992 launch. The twosome follows Macklemore & Ryan Lewis ("Thrift Shop," "Can't Hold Us," 2013), LMFAO ("Party Rock Anthem," 2011), 3OH!3 ("Don't Trust Me," 2009), D.H.T. ("Listen to Your Heart," 2005), Outkast ("Hey Ya!," "The Way You Move," 2003-04), Savage Garden ("I Knew I Loved You," "Truly Madly Deeply," "I Want You," 1997-2000), Everything But the Girl ("Missing," 1996) and The Rembrandts ("I'll Be There for You," 1995).

As "Wrong" rules Mainstream Top 40, it spends a second week atop Radio Songs (160 million in all-format audience, up 6 percent, according to Nielsen BDS) and a third frame at No. 1 on Adult Top 40. It also rises 8-6 as the Greatest Gainer on Rhythmic and debuts on

Meanwhile, The Black Keys' "Fever" ties for the longest Alternative reign this year, matching the 10-week command of Arctic Monkeys' "Do I Wanna Know?" The Black Keys lock up their third reign of double-digit weeks, following "Lonely Boy" (11 weeks, 2011-12) and "Tighten Up" (10, 2010-11). In the chart's nearly 26-year history, only three other acts have tallied reigns of 10 weeks or more with at least three songs: fellow Warner Bros. artists Red Hot Chili Peppers, who've done so with four songs; Linkin Park (three); and RCA's Foo Fighters (also three). —Gary Trust
