

Damien Rice Becomes “The Greatest Bastard” With New Track

October 31, 2014

By Corey From

<http://www.underthegunreview.net/2014/10/31/damien-rice-becomes-the-greatest-bastard-with-new-track/>

Another huge release that we’re greatly anticipating here at UTG, is the new Damien Rice album, My Favorite Faded Fantasy. With already hearing the title track and then “I Don’t Want to Change You“, he continually leaves us begging for more. And now we have “The Greatest Bastard.”

He doesn’t stray from his niche in this song, but he continues to blow our minds with his craft. He crescendos and decrescendos so strategically that it crushes our hearts and makes us fall in love at the same time. As he sings “Am I just dreaming once again? Some dreams are better when they end,” we come out of our trance and have to disagree with him, and wish he didn’t wake us up.

Check out the track below and be sure to pick up My Favorite Faded Fantasy on November 11 when it’s released.

