Tonight, Gallagher and band will perform "Wall of Glass" live on The Late Late Show With James Corden. Tune in to CBS stations at 12:37 a.m. ET/PT and 11:37 p.m. CT. For further details click here.

"Liam puts his signature voice on the line in a mostly original set of strut and reflection that sticks to Oasis' template – brawny Britpop, Beatle-esque ballads – and often invigorates it. Gallagher is writing like he means it and singing like his dream isn't over." – Rolling Stone

As You Were, Gallagher's debut solo album, was released last week to ecstatic feedback from the press who has hailed Gallagher as "Arguably the greatest frontman of his generation." – NME (U.K.)

"As You Were unmistakably glistens with the signs of a Liam Gallagher creation: it's riddled with Beatles references and sass, but above all, it wields the guitar as an unstoppable force to be reckoned with." – Consequence Of Sound

"Gallagher snarls over raucous power chords and pounding drums... Mammoth Choruses from one of rock's most casually charisma." – Rolling Stone

"Liam Gallagher - a potent force" – The Independent (U.K.)

"Powerful!" – Magnet Magazine

One of the most anticipated live music events of the year, Gallagher and his band will tour North America and the U.K. this fall and winter in support of As You Were. As those lucky enough to have caught one of the secret club shows in New York or Chicago can attest, fans are in for a modern, melodic punk rock experience with a set full of brilliant new tunes and some fan-favorite Oasis material.

"Where have all the rock 'n' roll stars gone? We found one July 28 at the McKittrick Hotel in New York City. It's Liam Gallagher... with sneer and lots attitude. Gallagher's band is tight, ready, and cool. Gallagher's a natural frontman, bringing intensity and a sense of danger to the stage - two elements that are vital to rock 'n' roll. Elements that are sorely in need." – Asbury Park Press
