November 13, 2017 (Burbank, CA) – Gary Clark Jr. is the central subject of the new season opening episode of PBS TV's Speakeasy, which will air on PBS stations beginning today in New York and Los Angeles markets. Additional air dates in other markets will be announced at a later date. Go to <http://speak-easy.tv/> or <http://speak-easy.tv/episodes/> for further details. Speakeasy is also viewable through Amazon for streaming on demand.

Filmed at the historic Iridium Club in New York City this past September, the Grammy Award winning Clark was interviewed by another multi-Grammy awarded Texas Blues legend Jimmie Vaughan. This episode offers an intimate, inside view into Clark and Vaughan's deep-rooted appreciation and knowledge of the blues and illustrates how each has found their unique voices within the cornerstone of all American forms of music. The pair trade stories and guitar licks for a truly inspirational viewing experience.

Rolling Stone hailed Clark “The Chosen One” for creating his own personal brand of the blues, which he’s contemporized into a style all his own inspired by hip-hop, psychedelic rock and R&B with equal measures of tradition and innovation. Paired with his distinctive smooth, soulful vocal delivery, it’s a winning combination which has captured the attention of Eric Clapton, Beyoncé, Jay Z, Paul McCartney, Jimmy Page, Neil Young, B.B. King, The Rolling Stones, Booker T. Jones, Buddy Guy, Sheryl Crow, Alicia Keys, My Morning Jacket and the list goes on. Clark won the Grammy Award for Best Traditional R&B performance as well as the Blues Music Award for “Contemporary Blues Male Artist of the Year” two years in a row, has performed on the Grammy Broadcast three times, and has commanded late night TV for the past several years.

Vaughan has become a staple in the blues-rock community first as a member of the Famous Thunderbirds and then as a solo artist. The first four albums from the Famous Thunderbirds are ranked among the most important “white blues” recordings. Vaughan is a four-time Grammy Award winner and has performed with the likes of Eric Clapton, Jimi Hendrix, and Bob Dylan.

Speakeasy is the ground-breaking public television series from the producers of Front and Center, which pairs Rock ‘n’ Roll Hall of Famers, Grammy Award and Tony Award winners, and iconic musicians with an interviewer of their choice. The result is an intimate conversation that leads to stories, experiences and compelling viewpoints that may not have been heard before. Speakeasy will return to public television for a third season November 2017.

As previously announced, Gary Clark Jr. will release his new hit single “Come Together” – from the DC film Justice League - on 12” vinyl as part of Record Store Day’s Black Friday November 24. Clark has taken one of the most iconic Lennon/McCartney compositions and, along with DJ/producer Junkie XL, has found a way to create something completely new in the process. A massive Beatles fan, Clark approached this project with a sense of respect and brevity. The end result retains the original aesthetic while recombining the molecules into something uncompromising and sonically powerful. Justice League opens in theaters November 17.
